

GRADUATES FOR KONA ORPHANAGE

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Evans, colored, graduates of Hampton Institute, Virginia, arrived here in the Ventura last week and have since been guests at Kamehameha schools. They are a bright and interesting couple in the prime of life and come to this Territory to take important positions in the Kona Orphanage.

Mr. Evans will have charge of the agricultural tuition on the place, while his wife will do class and matron's work. The couple called on Superintendent Atkinson at the Education office yesterday morning. An Advertiser reporter had a brief interview with them before they left the office.

The statement was made by Mr. Evans that he had been in the Hampton Institute for twenty-three years, his wife for a somewhat shorter period. "I am very much impressed with the islands so far," Mr. Evans replied to the stereotyped question.

Mrs. Evans was slightly more emphatic, saying:

"The unassuming beauty of the place is quite unsurpassable. It is truly a paradise."

Hampton Institute, as everybody knows, was founded by the late General S. C. Armstrong, who left his Honolulu home to fight for the country of his fathers in the great crisis.
